

Titan Management University/Virginia Tech Preview Event
Thursday, September 24, 2009 (8 a.m. - 11 a.m.)
Virginia Tech Roanoke Center - Room 715

Successful companies continue or accelerate their leadership development processes in tough economic times. Titan helps organizations build leaders through the Titan Management University (TMU) program – a six-month curriculum (48 hours classroom instruction) that covers the skills necessary for successful leadership in a supervisory role. TMU is aimed at behavior change, which is accomplished by spreading the learning over an extended period of time and providing an opportunity for participants to test ideas, exchange thoughts and build a support network for supervisors. Please join us for a hands-on workshop featuring a preview of two Titan Management University core modules: “Role of a Leader” and “Developing Your Communication Skills.” The cost of the preview is $50. To register, e-mail Shelley@TitanHR.com or call (804) 754-8330.

DISTINGUISHED FACULTY RESEARCH FORUM

James "Bud" I. Robertson, Jr. will kick off the Virginia Tech Roanoke Center's research forum series on September 11th beginning at noon. Robertson will address the topic "Overlooked Aspects of the Civil War." We all spend much time studying battles, generals, political leaders, and to a less extent-women, the home front, slavery, and the like. Yet we completely overlook some even more fundamental issues of the war-things so basic that they are never examined. Hopefully, those who attend the program will see sides to the Civil War never contemplated. The session will be held at the Roanoke Higher Education Center Claude Moore Education Complex.

This event is free and open to the public. For reservations call (540) 767-6100 or email vtrc@vt.edu.
